As we face a restructuring of education through the impending governmental “transformational change,” trustee participation in decision-making and the development of common understandings is crucial in establishing better resource allocation and realistic goals. We must never cease to apprise our government of the frailty of an education system without sustainable funding.

Our school boards must be ever vigilant of the fact that the future of this province lies with our youth and the future of our youth lies with our educators. My 38 years in the classroom have taught me that collective wisdom creates effective change as we deal with the ever-increasing challenges of providing excellence in our classrooms. 25 years of working in leadership roles with the Saskatchewan Teachers’ Federation and local associations have reinforced, for me, the value of listening carefully, communicating effectively, and collaborating through teamwork. I welcome the opportunity to serve as a trustee.
