9 Engaging Activities for Outdoor Learning Kids Will Love

Transforming the classroom from indoors to outdoors offers children countless learning opportunities, along with increased physical activity, critical thinking, self-awareness, teamwork, and more. Outdoor learning doesn't have to just be for elementary-age children. Activities can be easily modified to fit a range of learning levels and age groups. If you're an educator or parent who is interested in ways to get kids away from electronic devices and into the great outdoors, here are nine engaging activities for outdoor learning

SaskOutdoors encourages educators and people who participate in outdoor recreation to practice and teach environmental responsibility.

Speech & Language Strategy of the Month...

Follow Their Lead

We can help children build their language skills by taking an interest in what they're interested in. Children are more likely to talk about things that draw their attention and motivate them. Allow your child to choose a toy, game, or activity and then join them in their play. Talk about what they are doing using simple language and repeat the same words/phrases/sentences often throughout the activity. Take turns. Let them make the rules and tell you how to play their game. Get down on their level, if possible and interact with them face-to-face. Be silly and have fun!

Amanda McConnell,
Speech-Language Pathologist (SLP)

All families with children prenatal to age 5 are welcome every day in a safe, accessible, sensitive environment, at no cost to families.

WHY BOOSTER SEATS ARE NECESSARY
Boosters seats are necessary during the period when children are too big for forward-facing child seat but are too small for a seat belt. The booster seat works by raising the child in the vehicle seat so the seat belt is properly positioned low over the child's hips, and collar bone (between the shoulder and neck). An incorrectly positioned seat belt over a child's abdomen can cause the child to be seriously injured or even killed in a collision.

TEMPORARY EXHIBIT

Presented in Swift Current by the Métis Nation-Saskatchewan and the Swift Current Museum. The exhibition is developed by Library and Archives Canada in collaboration with the Manitoba Metis Federation and the Métis National Council, with the support of the Government of Canada.

Explore some of the rich history of the Métis Nation by visiting Hiding in Plain Sight:

The exhibition aims to foster a better understanding of the history and culture of the Métis Nation.

The exhibition is organized into three sections:

- Who are the Métis?
- Individual portraits of well-known or unidentified Métis.
- Eight themes related to the Métis Nation.

Learn about the lives of some of southwest Saskatchewan's earliest residents. From early experiences as bison hunters to contributions to cultural life, this exhibit explores the historical presence of the Métis people. The exhibit features artwork inspired from the history and landscape by Métis artist George Gingras.

This exhibit is suited for Middle Years and High School Students. Panel text is in English and French.

Contact Corla to book a tour of this new exhibit.

What to know about your trip to the museum

We are so excited to host your group at the museum. We will provide a place for jackets, boots and backpacks but encourage students to leave valuables at home. Tours generally run between 1.5-2.5 hours.

There is no running allowed in the museum and visitors may not touch the taxidermied animals.

$3/student (optional donation.) The museum can invoice your group and payment can be made by cash, cheque or online.

Students may bring drink or snack and can have them at the carpet or table area inside of the museum. The museum does have a gift shop so students have the option to bring a small amount of money to buy a souvenir if the teacher/school allows.

Upcoming Temporary Exhibits- 2023

Space to Spoon July-September

On loan from the Canada Agriculture and Food Museum

What does a satellite orbiting 798 km from Earth have to do with the food on our plate? Space to Spoon demonstrates how Space technology benefits Canadian farmers and sustainable agriculture. It also highlights the Canadian Space Agency's Earth observation satellite, RADARSAT-2, and its cutting-edge successor, RADARSAT Constellation.

Enemy Aliens

October- December
Internment in Canada
1914-1920

On loan from the Canadian War Museum

During the First World War, national security fears and wartime prejudice drove the policy of internment, which lasted until 1920. During this time, Canada interned 8,579 people identified as "enemy aliens", mainly Ukrainian and German immigrants, across a network of 24 camps. "Enemy alien" was the term used to describe citizens of states legally at war with the British Empire, and who resided in Canada during the war.

Using photographs drawn from Canadian archival collections one hundred years later, this exhibition explore internment operations and the experiences of the internees: who they were, the conditions they endured and the legacy they left behind.
